Project Description: The new Kent County Consolidated Human Services building is a LEED certified facility. This building consolidates the Department of Human Services, the Area Community Services Employment and Training Council (ACSET) offices and a Kent County Health Clinic in one facility. Moore & Bruggink was responsible for the site related sustainable strategies including porous pavement to contain storm water runoff on site, diminish the impact to the City's storm system and recharge the ground water. Because the site had leachable substances of concern, the leachable surface area could not be changed. This necessitated a hybrid approach to the stormwater management design on site. One of the two parking lots was placed as an impervious surface with underground storage and slow release to the City's storm system. The project also required close coordination with the City for utility service connections.
